It will be a busy Labor Day weekend all around the Highland Lakes, but the biggest public event will definitely be Bertram’s wacky-but-wonderful Oatmeal Festival. See more photos and info on pages 8 & 9.

Scatterthought

I was here all last weekend, and normally I’d have a whole lot of pictures to fill the pages of my paper. Unfortunately, Hurricane Harvey intervened. Not only did several local events get canceled or postponed, but I spent a lot of the weekend watching the news. My daughter, who lives in the Reef's home was devastated by flooding last year, and my daughter, who lives in the Reef’s home was devastated by flooding last year, and I saw images of flooded streets near her new home. She was in Dallas for the weekend, but I’m afraid she and her husband will have another long ordeal ahead of them. Of course, their predicament is multiplied by hundreds of thousands of times in the southeast Texas area, and many many, many people are worse off than they are. That knowledge makes me even more proud of my Highland Lakes neighbors, who have joined with thousands of others from all around Texas and other states to do whatever they can to help those affected by this disaster.

I was particularly interested to hear that my friends from Smokey's, a faith-based ministry, just last Sunday celebrated the 12th anniversary of their "escape" from Hurricanes Katrina and Rita in New Orleans, were in the forefront of efforts to help evacuees from Harvey on Monday and Tuesday. They are certainly not alone; I’m sure that I don’t know everything that has been done (or is planned) to help those in need right now, but I do know that a contingent from Texas Baptist Men and another from the Kingsland VFD (the several local individuals) have been on the “front lines.” Several different local groups are taking up collections to help those caught in Harvey’s destructive path. Everybody I know is helping at least a little by donating what they can, and thousands of prayers are going up at any given time.

I’m told that there are close to 200 evacuees at Inks Lake State Park, and that they need food and a variety of personal items. You can check with the First Baptist Church in Kingsland for details. The Kingsland VFD is collecting supplies and cash to take to Dickinson (one of the hardest-hit towns, but one place where the water has gone down dramatically) on Wednesday, and several Kingsland businesses are serving as collection points. I know that Hurricane Harvey is not “good news” for anyone, but the neighbors of Texas (and others — I was thrilled to hear that the “Cajun Navy” is in action once again, here in Texas) IS good news.

The new Boys and Girls Club in Kingsland had to take a break seat to Harvey this week, but I was glad to hear that a fundraiser at Protea Salon & Spa raised more than $400 last Thursday, plus almost 80 books. Protea plans to host a fundraiser for some area non-profit once a month. I’ll try to keep you up to date.

Tom Perry sent in a classified ad, which I didn’t see until after I had finished that page. It says, “Want to Rent - In Kingsland area - Dry barn or storage area, at least 10 x 30 for 6 to 10 months. Must be reasonably priced. Email tomwill@aoi.com.” He sent me $3 extra because he wasn’t sure how I counted the words, so I thought I would mention here that I am quite easy-going when it comes to counting. “10 x 30” is one word, “6 to 10” is one word and an email address is one word. I’ll give Mr. Perry an extra ad (written right here) for his $3.

The Kingsland Library is planning a 10th anniversary celebration. There are several free events announced for the week of October 11. Everyone in the vicinity of Kingsland is encouraged to visit with the new and returning Kingsland Library staff, share community pride, and enjoy desserts with friends.

My friend, Martell Biddle, who has his Highland Barber Shop in the Highland Lakes Shopping Center in Kingsland for many years before he had to move last year (his old shop has since been torn down, and they’re building a new bank there), tells me that some people don’t know where to find him these days. He placed an ad with me for this month, but I thought I’d give him a little assist; his barber shop is now in the “Satellite Station” building, just off Hwy 1431 on Chamberlain Street. Tell him I said “Hi!”

You’ve probably noticed my series of history stories from Llano in 1917. I had no idea it would take so long to get through that one year, but there are so many interesting items in those old papers that I just don’t want to hurry. One thing I noticed this past week was that...

Hurricane Response

Groups of Texas Baptist Men (including some from central Texas) served breakfast at 5:30 on Monday morning to members of Texas Task Forces 1 & 2 who were performing search-and-rescue missions in Gulf Coast towns battered by Hurricane Harvey.

Four members of the Kingsland VFD took two boats to Dickinson (just south of Houston) last weekend to help rescue people from flooded neighborhoods. At left, Asst. Chief Joey Whittenburg was interviewed by Fox News between rescue trips in the VFD boat.

A cheerful group of good-hearted volunteers from the Kingsland VFD and Auxiliary loaded a trailer on Wednesday evening with items for hurricane evacuees in Dickinson. VFD members expect to take three or four trailer loads to the storm-ravaged town on Saturday.

Members of Smoking for Jesus Ministry celebrated on Sunday the twelfth anniversary of their “escape” from New Orleans in the aftermath of Hurricanes Katrina and Rita. The next day, they were serving delicious New Orleans-style food to evacuees from the Gulf Coast at Inks Late State Park.

Wendy Armour (left) and Calvin Richard (right) came to Marble Falls from New Orleans after Hurricane Katrina in 2005. On Monday night, they, Todd Higginbotham and Rusty Freeman helped co-ordinate a dinner and assistance drive, at the First Baptist Church in Marble Falls, for evacuees from Hurricane Harvey.

This “evacuee” family may look familiar to some Highland Lakes residents; Tac Cozby is a MFHS grad who now lives in South Houston with his family (Allison, Hunter, Harper, Hayden) They came to Marble Falls on Thursday, before the hurricane struck.

September 1, 2017 Highland Lakes Weekly Page 5
By JOHN HALLOWELL

By the end of May, 1917, the war in Europe was dominating the news — even in the small town of Llano. A banner headline on the May 24 issue of The Llano News announced “Tuesday, June 5 is the day when EVERY man between the ages of 21 and 31 MUST register.” One of the stories under that headline was titled, “Army Registration to be made on June 5,” and another advised young men on how to answer the questions on the registration cards. A third front-page story reported that the Germans were holding several Americans as prisoners in Belgium, and a fourth listed five Llano volunteers who had already signed up to serve in the U.S. military.

There was a little bit of local news that week, too. George Watkins was at Scott & White Hospital in Temple for “diagnosis and medical advice.” G. Ehman had come from Brownwood to take a job as tailor for the Johnson & Byfield store. And local members of the Woodmen of the World were planning a banquet “next Saturday night” at the Don Carlos Hotel.

The same banner headline was repeated on May 31, as the June 5 deadline approached, and a front-page story noted that the German newspapers had reported the top-secret landing of American ships in England four days before it happened (and that the harpoons were mined by German submarines the day before the ships arrived in England). A Llano volunteer in training for the U.S. Navy was reported to be in London.

But there was a lot more “local” news in the May 31 paper. Robert Lewis and George West were “badly bruised” after the buggy in which they were riding was struck by “a large Mitchell touring car being driven by Earl Goodson,” which was traveling across the Llano River bridge “at a very rapid rate.” The story detailed the collision, saying that “the car came on without any apparent decrease in speed until it struck them, knocking them from the buggy and carrying the horse and vehicle for several feet.” The back of Mr. West’s head “struck the top of the outside bannister of the bridge, and he fell to the footpath. But for the fact that his head struck this railing, he would have been hurled entirely off the bridge onto the rocks below.” The horse suffered two broken ribs and was “badly skinned all over the body.” The occupants of the car (which belonged to Watkins Auto Sales) were not injured, but the car itself was “badly damaged.”

Two young children were reported missing in Valley Spring, and a large group of searchers fanned out across the hilly terrain. The children were discovered about midnight, six miles from their home at the home of Fritz Kohmann Jr., where they had been given a meal and put to bed. In the absence of cell phones, most of the searchers kept on looking for the children. T.E. Foster and A.H. Willborn followed the children’s trail through the night, arriving at the Kohmann home around 3 a.m.

George and Luie Watkins returned from Temple, with George reporting some improvement in his condition.

Lee Jerreng and App Smith completed renovations at the old Gray store, turning it into a well-appointed showroom for five auto manufacturers: Interstate, Pathfinder, Jordan, Dodge and Hudson Super-Six. The Western Union Telegraph and Cable Company and the stockholders’ exchange announced planned moves to offices inside the Don Carlos Hotel.

The banner headline on June 7 urged residents of Llano to “Save your country by buying a Liberty Loan Bond. They are now on sale at six Llano banks.” A front-page story titled “Wave of Patriotism sweeps the country” reported that an estimated 10,590,000 young men had registered under the Conscription Act, far exceeding government estimates. A reported 591 were from Llano County; 244 from Llano, 58 from Valley Spring, 34 each from Kingsland and Baby Head, 25 from Castell and Six Mile, and smaller numbers from Lone Grove (21), Field Creek, Click and Tow (17 each), Esbon (15), Winkler (12), Long Mountain, Oxford and Sandy Mountain (11 each), Blufuon (10), Honey Creek (9), McNeitr (8), Prairie Mountain (7) and Gainesville (5).

J.C. Cone and four passengers made a trip to Garden City and back in his new Buick, a trip of 234.9 miles each way. The party left Garden City at 6:17 a.m. for the return trip, and arrived in Llano at 8:45 p.m. (an average of 16 miles per hour). The newspaper called it a “record” journey, and said “the most pleasing part of the trip was that neither going nor returning did the car happen to be the slightest mishap, and the entire trip was made without the least trouble of any kind.”

A cloud burst in northern Llano County on June 2, accompanied by damaging hail in Baby Head, caused a temporary eight-foot rise in the Llano River even though the city of Llano had only a light rain.

Headlines on June 14 reported “Aliens Dethrone the King of Greece,” and “Another advance of the British Forces.” A promotion for Liberty bonds caused pandemonium in downtown Llano when combined train whistles and church bells were mistaken for a fire alarm. Residents fired guns into the air and volunteer fire fighters converged at the square, but nobody could find the fire. Eventually, the confused citizens learned that the original sounds (four whistle blasts and four chimes) had been intended to remind them that there were just four days left to buy Liberty Bonds!

Two axe accidents were reported: Willie Willborn cut his arm severely while chopping cedar near Tow, and Roy Cates had to have his foot amputated at Scott & White in Temple after he nearly severed it when the axe slipped while he was

Chevrolets were mentioned for the first time (at least the first time I’ve noticed) in June of 1917. Chevy was still a new company, and far behind Ford that year (4th overall, behind Ford, Overland-Willys and Buick), but it caught up and passed Ford in sales just ten years later. Another fascinating feature of 1917 Llano was the difficulty of transportation. Kingsland was often an overnight trip, and when a Llano resident attempted a trip to Garden City (just a three-hour trip these days; I’ve been there on my way to Midland), it took a nerve-racking 14 hours (and then only because the car didn’t break down!)

I was also reminded that Alaska and Hawaii were not yet states in 1917. They were territories of the U.S., and young men there had to sign up for a possible draft, but they would not be drafted for more than 40 years (both in 1959). Llano (and the whole world) was a lot different just one hundred years ago.

Breaking News: The Kingsland VFD’s collection for hurricane relief will NOT end when the first load goes to Dickinson this Friday! Fire Chief Daryll Miller tells me that collections and deliveries will continue as needed through the rest of this year. The Buttery Hardware Company was the agent for Chevrolet when the relatively new (six years old in 1917) company was #4 in auto sales (after Ford, Overland-Willys and Buick). It was just ten years later that Chevrolet overtook Ford in sales.

chopping kindling. William Williams, of Kingsland, was taken to the Pasteur Institute in Austin after he was bitten by a “mad dog.” The dog was killed “on Henry Long’s place, near Pack Saddle.”

A big Baptist revival was going on at the Opera House in Llano. Mrs. M.M. Moss, chairman of the local Red Cross, announced that Lee Jernigan and App smith had donated the “upper part of their show room on Bridge Street” for use as a Red Cross headquarters.

A small news item on the front page of the June 21 paper was titled “Fords Delivered.” It listed seven buyers who had taken delivery of new Fords that week, and said “War or no war, the Ford cars are in demand and as fast as they are received purchasers take them up.” Another article reported that “the Buttery Hardware Company delivered this week two of the popular Chevrolets.”

The June 28 paper reported that Reeves Kuykendall had purchased a Hudson Super-Six, and that Dr. W.Y. Fowler had purchased “a fine Cadillac” in the previous week. Lee Jernigan reported that, in addition to Mr. Kuykendall’s Hudson, he had sold Dodge cars to D.F. Rich and C.W. Whitt of San Saba, and a “second-hand Maxwell” to R.W. White of Llano.

Local railroad agent R. Fishbeck reported that (apparently due to the war effort) the railroad would not be furnishing stock cars for stock loading “until further notice.”

A front-page article in the June 27 Houston Post contained an interview with Llano mineralogist N.J. Badu about “present mineral developments in Llano County.”
Music around the Lakes

Happy Birthday, Mrs. Fox!

Some of the guests at a party celebrating the 91st birthday of Lavonna Rea “Vonnie” Fox gathered for this picture with her on Tuesday afternoon. A highlight of the party was a video chat with Mrs. Fox’s granddaughter, Chelsea Warden, who is currently serving with the U.S. Navy near Tokyo, Japan.

Vonnie Fox is the daughter of Burnet County’s legendary sheriff, Wallace Riddell, and the wife of Burnet businessman Billy Joe Fox. The entrepreneurial couple has been successful in many business endeavors, including the building of Thunderbird Lodge (on the east side of Lake Buchanan), the founding of Fox Real Estate (where her birthday party was held), and the development of Burnet’s upscale golf course subdivision, Delaware Springs, where they donated 200 acres to the city of Burnet for a golf course in 1991.
