These young superheroes were some of the attendees at the Herman Brown Free Library's Batman Day celebration in Burnet last Saturday. While the summer programs are over, area libraries have a full schedule of entertaining and educational programs through the school year (see some “Upcoming Events” beginning on page 2). The Marble Falls Library is planning a week-long celebration next week to mark 20 years in its Main Street location, and several events are planned for the Kingsland, Llano, Buchanan Dam and Burnet libraries, as well.

These cheerful ladies (Valerie Clark, Sandy Darnell and Lin Christ) were among the crowd of volunteers who were transforming the normally-tidy Kingsland Community Church into something like a storm shelter/struggling “4th of July celebration.” The church’s huge Rummage and Bake Sale is scheduled for this Friday and Saturday (see ad on page 10). The church will also host a flu shot clinic with HEB Pharmacy from 11:30 to 1:30 next Tuesday (bring insurance and immunization documents).

Scatterthought

It was another great week around the Highland Lakes, and the only slight disappointment that I have as this paper goes to press is that I don’t have space for as many pictures as I had hoped. Of course, that’s the product of a big week for ad sales, and after several “slow” weeks in a row, I certainly don’t feel like complaining!

It wasn’t just this week’s activities that made my week so interesting. After several months of writing about history from other towns, I decided on Monday to write about Kingsland history. During a Kingsland history session, I made progress on three great Kingsland history stories. Two of the stories are about remarkable people who had the last name (but were not related), Vuel Moore presided over much of Kingsland’s re-birth as county commissioner from 1940 until 1963 (he was first elected in November of 1940, and died while still in office, in January 1948). Eron Moore was the manager of the Anchor Restaurant (where Eron’s is now) in the 1970s, and served as Kingsland’s unofficial ski coach before the arrival of David and Pat Enloe. The other story is the former Longhorn Resort (soon to be the Baytown’s new marina and family-style restaurant). I had not realized how long the cabins (originally Biggs’s Lodge) were there, but they were apparently there before the 2900 bridge was built in 1965. I hope to be able to publish more details about them in the near future.

Also, in pursuit of details from Euel Moore’s career, I read through the minutes of the Llano County commissioners court meetings from 1950 to 1958. They weren’t particularly focused on Kingsland, but I learned quite a bit about early subdivisions and roads in Kingsland (as near as I could tell, Euel Moore Drive was probably built in 1952).

Some more current Kingsland news came from the album that I posted last week on Facebook, showing several construction projects going on in Kingsland. Now, John Connerman, who brought his family from Lubbock to Llano about two years ago and has several projects going on all at once, sent me a picture from Cy-Tex, a new subdivision off Williams Lakehore Drive on the Colorado River Arm of Lake LBJ. I met him on Tuesday morning and toured the first of the eight amazing homes he’s planning to build (see photo on page 4). He and his wife, Rachel, just opened a 3-unit B&B (“Mustard Seed”) in a beautifully-restored historic home on the river in Llano.

All this week, I’ve also been watching the demolition of the cabins at Longhorn Resort. I thought I’d have space for several before-and-after pictures in this week’s paper, but I think one picture on page 4 of this week’s paper will have room for.

A few “contributed” pictures that I expected to fit in didn’t quite make the cut. I planned to include a picture of some Faith Academy students who raised $1,173.59 for St. Martin’s Parish, in support of Hurricane Harvey victims. I want to say thanks and congratulations to those students (and I was glad to see the picture in another paper)! Also, I had a picture of one of the raffle prizes donated for “Western Trappings on the Llano,” a stone barn ceramic Water Carrier (I think that’s what you call a really fancy barn) created by Patrick Beckman. Western Trappings will open at 5-30 p.m. on Friday, October 13, with the Meet the Artists Gala and Preview Sale at the Llano County Historical Museum. Tickets for the Artist Gala are on sale at the museum and online at www.westerntrappings.com.

Another picture (which I’ll try to get in next week’s paper) is Iris Kennedy’s amazing quilt, available for purchase at the Country Quilt Shop in Llano. It turns out that he was contacted by the Northcott fabric company, which put some of his paintings on cotton fabric!

Another of Iris’s paintings, this one on canvas, is among the Silent Auction items at the Llano Fine Arts Guild’s ARToberfest, scheduled for Saturday, October 7. There will be German Food and Music, plus a silent auction with wonderful paintings, pottery, etc. for sale.

Ancient Oaks ~ This radiant, well-kept 3/2 home is ready for you! 1744 sq. ft. home packs a LOT in living space. Open living room with fireplace, fabulous windows throughout, beautiful kitchen with granite counter tile, storage areas, nice wood floors. All of this on 2.16 acres with a 600 sq. ft. building that offers tons of possibilities! Currently being used as office/storage/workshop. Home is located in the established subdivision of Ancient Oaks in Marble Falls. You must see this one to believe it!
Demolition on the 50-year-old cabins at Longhorn Resort was completed on Tuesday morning. The property was purchased earlier this year by Boat Town, of Austin, which plans to build a dealership, a marina, and a family-style restaurant.

Ron Polinski and Andra Schulz are building their retirement home on Violet Street, off RR 2545 near Lakeside Heights in northern Kingsland. The very-inviting front porch is just one of many custom features in the new home, built by Aguilar Construction.

Developer John Corcoran posed for this picture at the first of eight upscale homes to be built at his Cypress Shores project, a gated lakefront subdivision on the Llano County side of the Colorado River Arm in Kingsland. The Corcoran family moved to Llano from Lubbock about two years ago, and have already made their presence felt in towns around the Hill Country. Their Mustard Seed B&B, three units in a beautifully-restored historic home on the river in Llano, opened just last week.

Meet NASA stars at the Hill Country Space Expo

Above: Chuck Deiterich worked in the NASA control center during the most exciting years of the Apollo space program. He was a refight officer who helped plan the course of Apollo 11 (the first moon landing) and helped bring Apollo 13 safely back to earth. He plans to be at the Hill Country Space Expo again this weekend.

By JOHN HALLOWELL

One of the most exciting stories in American history (and world history) was the spectacular success of the Apollo space program’s lunar missions, from 1968 to 1972. Right in the middle of that amazing story was Charles “Chuck” Deiterich, who now resides in right here in Burnet.

Chuck Deiterich was born in 1938 in Pennsylvania, where his father worked as a machinist at an airport. He grew up with a strong interest in the science of flight. After the Deiterich family moved to Houston (when Chuck was 13 years old), he worked with his older brother in a garage-based model-airplane company while he was in high school.

After graduating from high school, Deiterich studied physics and math at the University of Saint Thomas, in Houston, and became more and more excited about rockets. The first Russian Sputnik satellite went into orbit while he was there (October 4, 1957), a memorable event which brought the “space race” to the public’s consciousness and heightened the young man’s interest in space travel.

After graduating from Saint Thomas, the young engineer took a job working on flight simulators at the William P. Hobby Airport, then worked on (among other things) signal conditioning equipment for Titan II missiles, at Dresser Electronics. While NASA opened its Manned Spacecraft Center in Houston in 1962, Deiterich’s father urged him to apply for a job there. His first application was not successful, and he went to work for Test Equipment corporation. While there, he applied again at NASA.

He was hired into the Flight Dynamics Branch of NASA in 1964, where he was assigned to Trajectory Operations as a “Retrofire Officer” in the Apollo section. His job was to plan for safe returns and re-entries under any circumstances – especially if a mission was aborted. He was the lead retrofire officer by 1968, and played a key role in planning and executing the space flights of Apollo 8 through 17. He helped plan the course of Apollo 11 for the first moon landing in 1969, and developed the abort maneuver plan that brought the Apollo 13 crew back home safely after an oxygen tank explosion crippled the Module in 1970. He received the Presidential Medal of Freedom for that accomplishment.

During the 1980s, Deiterich entered a special program for NASA employees and earned a Master’s degree in Physical Science at the University of Houston in Clear Lake. As the space program transitioned from the Apollo rockets to the Space Shuttle program, he became the Shuttle Approach and Landing Flight Dynamics Officer and designed the profiles for the shuttle and the paired shuttle-and-747 to satisfy aerodynamic requirements. During the shuttle flights, he was the air traffic controller who directed the approach and landing at Edwards Air Force Base, in Southern California.

From the late 1970s until he retired in 1994, Deiterich served in many different capacities at NASA: branch chief, office chief, range safety manager, and deputy division chief for flight design and dynamics. Although he never flew as an astronaut, he believes that he had the “best seat in the house.” Since his “retirement,” he has worked as an engineering consultant with several major clients, including Amazon.com founder Jeff Bezos, whose “Blue Origin” space tourism company has recently made several successful take-offs and re-landings with their rockets.

Mr. Deiterich will be one of several people at the Hill Country Space Expo this weekend who were involved in heyday of the amazing American space program. The Expo will be open to the public (free of charge) from 9 to 4 at the Boys & Girls Club. Jerry Bostick, who worked as a flight controller for the Apollo missions (and now lives in the Highland Lakes area) will be another of the guests at this year’s Space Expo, and space shuttle astronaut Dan Bursch, who spent 196 days aboard the space station (December 2001 to June 2002) will be the Guest of Honor. The Space Expo will also feature an impressive collection of artifacts from the space program, as well as hands-on activities such as model-building and flight simulators. It is sponsored by the Weirwood Family Foundation and other groups who wish to promote public interest in America’s space program.
The Cassie Volunteer Fire Department, on the east side of Lake Buchanan, held a BBQ and Open House last Saturday to celebrate 40 years of service in the lakeside community.

Students from the Llano Christian Academy helped serve the large crowd which attended their Community Banquet last Saturday evening at the JLK Event Center. The academy recently moved into a new campus at the east end of Green Street in Llano.

Volunteers at the Marble Falls Senior Center served hundreds of guests at their annual Fish Fry and Bake Sale fundraiser. The cooking was done by former sheriff Joe Pollock and his crew, outside the center’s back door.
Faith Academy’s track coach, Steve McCannon, took an early lead at last Saturday’s 5K Memorial Run for Camp Agape, and never relinquished it, finishing first overall with a time of 19:25. Some of the runners who had signed up were unable to attend the re-scheduled event (postponed during Hurricane Harvey), but there were still more than 70 participants at Johnson Park in Marble Falls on Saturday morning. Breakfast sandwiches were provided for the runners by Chick Fil-A and coffee by Starbucks.

Runners and drivers mingled among the unique vehicles from the Lake Area Rods & Classics car club. The charitable group not only brought their cars, but brought a donation of $950 for Camp Agape.

Founder Kim Turk, of Camp Agape (a bereavement camp for children who have lost a loved one) thanked participants, sponsors and car club members before the balloon release which concluded the morning’s festivities.

Weekdays Ministries is planning a “Worship Chili Cook-Off” on Saturday, October 21. I'll try to give you more details next week, but you can find out more on their Facebook page or their website.

It's not really Highland Lakes news, but I know a lot of folks here have been concerned for Rockport and neighboring towns which were hit so hard by Hurricane Harvey. I was glad to hear that Governor Greg Abbott and country music legend George Strait were in Rockport the other day, visiting residents and promising continued assistance.

Don't be alarmed if you see a whole lot of emergency vehicles at the at the Burnet Community Center next Friday morning (October 6). The Burnet County Office of Emergency Management will be conducting a “Large-Scale Exercise,” involving a theoretical hazardous materials release. For more info, please contact Jim Barbo at 512-750-0507.

Hi, my name is Roscoe, and I'm just a year old. I love to run and play, but I am very good on a leash as well. I love to go on walks, and I like other dogs and cats too. I would love my own home, and I promise I'll be a great companion. If you want to find out more about me, please call the Hill Country Humane Society at 512-793-5463. You can see all my friends waiting for adoption at www.HillCountryHumaneSociety.org. We are open Thursday through Monday from 11am to 4pm.
