Grieving father Tom Ketterhagen (at right, in gray) led a group of bicyclists around a 13.3-mile loop from the Oatmeal Community Center last Saturday morning in the Tommy Ketterhagen Memorial Road Race and Ride, honoring his son, Tommy, who was killed by a hit-and-run driver near Georgetown a few days after competing in the Oatmeal Road Race last January. The Memorial Ride, presented by Brad Houston Law, was followed by a series of competitive races on the scenic country roads around Oatmeal. The Tommy Ketterhagen Memorial Foundation supports bicycle safety awareness and initiatives in and around Central Texas. (See lots more pictures on the “Highland Lakes Weekly” Facebook page).

You have probably already noticed that this week’s paper is a little different than usual; for one thing, there are only twelve pages in it. That’s partly because January is my slowest month; there are not as many public events in January (especially this week), between the stock shows and the (Christmas banquets) and, frankly, I’m not selling as many ads. Along with those facts, I am expecting guests this week: my brother and his wife are taking my father on a cross-country road trip, and they are headed in this direction as I type. I’m taking most of the day off on Wednesday.

I’ll go over some things I want to mention here. One is a Super Bowl “Tailgate” promotion from noon to 2 p.m. at the Kingsland H.E.B. on Saturday, February 3. Festivities will include free refreshments, a football-throwing competition and more. Another is the “Singing Valentine” program by The Hill Country Singers. Tickets are only $40 a quartet in Barbershop attire will come to your chosen venue and present two love songs, a lovely silk rose and a picture of the loved one with the quartet. Contact any of the Blenders to arrange a “Singing Valentine” or call Jim McAshe at 325-388-4496 or email him at jimncashe@netcom.com. The third item is a “Valentine Shoes” fundraiser for the Orry Francis Train, to be held at Genesis Lutheran Church in Buchanan Dam on the evening of Saturday, February 10. I hope to have more details about all these items in next week’s paper.

I got a sort of “wake up call” last week, illustrating one of the pitfalls of January (especially when it’s done a little bit at a time over six years!). I was not at all confident about the name of one of the three men I named in the old picture in January 2016. I am much more confident about all those who called or emailed to tell me I was wrong, that he was Bryant (or B.C.) Long (NOT the pastor, Rev. Theron Brown). However, Sheree Kaspar went above and beyond, emailing me another picture of that same event, which noted that it was taken on January 24, 1965.

I had recently been reviewing Kingsland news from 1964, and there were three items which led me to believe the old church had been moved that year. The first reported that members of the Kingsland Community Church discussed plans for a new building, on April 15. The second told how members of the Kingsland Christian Church voted on July 12 to sell their property to Kingsland Community Church, which had already decided to build a new sanctuary. The decision meant that the old Christian Church building would have to be moved, and a search was on for a suitable new home. The third (near the end of July) was a front-page story which bore the headline “Kingsland Landmark Church to Be Moved,” and read “One of Kingsland’s few old-time landmark buildings is being moved soon to a new site.” According to Shirley Williams, who had recently been elected chairman of the Christian Church board, the old white frame building had been constructed in 1904; it had been used for several years by the Kingsland Community Church.

In January of 1965, a news item (which I last read about four years ago) mentioned that the newly-organized Christian Church were held on Sunday, January 17 in the 1904 church building. Apparently, that building had not yet been moved to Chamberlain Street, because it was still on the Community Church property when the ground-breaking was held on January 24. I am now assuming that it was moved in 1965, but I won’t put that in my book unless I find some solid confirmation!

I regret to say that there are almost certainly a few misstatements in my book; I believe that almost all that I’ve written is at least very close to the truth, but I’m already planning to write a revised edition of the book (with more facts, a few corrections, a list of businesses and likely locations, plus a family name index) after I get some feedback from this “first step” toward a real Kingsland history. I do believe that there is enough good information in my book to make it a real benefit to the community.

There are a couple of other things I want to mention (that’s why I opted to skip the “Photo of the Week” this week). Pastor Bobba Stahl, of Kingsland First Baptist Church, is “retiring” (or at least shifting his focus to his “Salt Block Ministries”) next month, and there will be an event in his honor at 10 a.m. on February 11. I hope to have more details next week.

The Texas Exes are inviting all alumni and friends to help Habitat for Humanity with a new home at 2nd Street and Avenue A in Marble Falls. They are hoping to have 15 volunteer volunteers from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturday, February 24. And the Hill County Medical Group’s Immediate Care Clinic is now open in Llano at the former Parish Dental office (1310 Ford St.). It will serve patients of all ages, providing immediate care for colds & flu, injuries & sprains, allergies & asthma, rashes, bug bites, skin problems and other common complaints. There will be no appointment needed, and the clinic will be open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Patients will also be able to get on-site x-rays, stitches and some lab work.

The Diva Dawgs and the Bulldog Bros will hold their annual Valentine Dances on Sunday, February 18. The Daddy/Daughter Dance will begin at 4 p.m., the Family Dance will begin at 5:30, and the Mother/Son Dance. There will be a professional photo booth, snacks and lots of fun. There is no admission fee, but donations are appreciated.

The Marble Falls Chamber of Commerce will hold its Chamber Awards Banquet the following Saturday, February 24.

Rod’s Barrels & Strings will host two Turkey Seminars on Saturday, March 3, in their new location (1300 Hwy 281N). Basic turkey calling (on box and slate) will be discussed at 11 a.m. and turkey hunting at noon.

The Llano VFD will hold its annual fundraiser Fish & Try and BBQ on Saturday, April 14 (from 4 p.m. until the food runs out).
Volunteers Judy Pullen, Janet Anderson, Sharon Jenson and Sue Grove greeted visitors at the Bluebonnet Quilt Club’s big quilt show at the Kingsland Community Center last weekend. The beautiful quilt hanging behind them is “Hill Country Splendor,” which represents nature and wildlife in the Texas Hill Country. It was made by a design team of 32 members of the Highland Lakes Quilt Guild, and took 8 months to complete. Designer Carol Morrisey granted permission to use her flower patterns. It was machine-quilted by Angela McCorkle, and will be the club’s “donation quilt,” to be raffled at the Highland Lakes Quilt Show on February 19 and 20 in Burnet. Funds raised from the sale of tickets will be used to support educational programs and Community Service Projects.

Visitors admire some of the dozens of beautiful quilts at the Kingsland Community Center last Friday.

Creative Hearts Ministry, a group from Marble Falls First Baptist Church which gives quilts as “tangible love and comfort during a health crisis or need,” staffed a colorful booth at the Kingsland show.

Above: A crowd of local dignitaries joined Meals on Wheels of Williamson and Burnet Counties in celebrating the Grand Opening of its new Burnet Congregate Center, in the former elementary school at 602 N. Wood, with a ribbon-cutting at noon last Thursday. The building, no longer needed by the school district, also houses Burnet’s Head Start program, senior center and Agrilife Extension office.

At right: Master Naturalists Lynette Holtz and Billy Hutson presided over a “Taste of Nature” program on birds’ nests for the Upper Highland Lakes Nature Center at Numinous Coffee Roasters in Marble Falls last Saturday. Spectators were invited to try to build a nest with supplied materials using just two fingers to simulate a bird’s beak.

Randy Hilmer is a multi-talented newcomer to the Highland Lakes area; he is a Minnesota native who was captain of his high school wrestling team, a “crypto security officer” for the U.S. Navy and a Senior Buyer for engineering with Boyd Gaming Corporation in Las Vegas. In the meantime, he pursued his youthful interests as a musician, MC, entertainer and songwriter (he has written about 80 songs). More recently, he has also written four murder mysteries. After retiring in 2014, he came to Burnet to be closer to family members who already lived in Central Texas. In the past three years, he has been active with the Hill Country Community Theatre (the photo above is from one of the theatre’s musicals), and can often be seen with his karaoke setup at area music venues. His most recent project is a foray into children’s books; he does the writing, and his son, Ryan, does the illustrations. His books are available at Amazon; you can find them online by searching for “Randy Hilmer children’s books.”
Kingsland’s “Old Church”

This photo shows the 1904 Christian Church before it was moved from the Kingsland Community Church property on 1431 to its current location on Chamberlain Street. A 1965 ad explained that it was the lone survivor of four Kingsland churches active in the early 1900s.

Patsy Inglet made a presentation on “Native Plants and Native Birds: a relationship worth sharing” at a meeting of the Highland Lakes Native Plant Society last Saturday at the Marble Falls Library.

The new H.E.B. in Marble Falls is almost ready for its February 9 opening; the move from the “old” store has already begun.

At right: The Falls on the Colorado Museum will have an exhibit on the history of Granite Shoals and Cottonwood Shores through February 28.

Music around the Lakes

Above: Country music star Doug Stone drew a large crowd to the Ramblin’ Rose in Llano last Saturday night.

At left: Texas Crossing opened the show for Doug Stone last Saturday night. The popular duo will be performing again at Burnet’s Bluebonnet Festival in April.

The four-member string band “Evoke” (Nick Montopoli, violin/banjo; Zach Matterson, violin; Kari Mitze, violin/mandolin; and Geoffrey Manyin, cello) delighted the crowd at Spicewood Vineyards last Saturday evening with their “not classical... but not not classical” music. They are all students at UT in Austin.
