Bigger and better than ever – the Marble Falls Mayfest attracted crowds to Johnson Park all last weekend, where carnival rides, vendors and excellent live music turned the whole area into a giant block party. You can see a few more photos on page 9, and a whole lot more on the “Highland Lakes Weekly” Facebook page.

These United Methodist Women graciously invited me to come and talk about my book, “Lake LBJ and the Re-Birth of Kingsland” at their meeting on Wednesday (and many of them purchased a copy after the meeting!) I’ll be holding a book-signing from 1 to 3 p.m. this Sunday at the Kingsland House of Arts & Crafts.

I have quite a few things to mention this week, but I want to lead off by announcing my book-signing, scheduled for 1 to 3 p.m. this Sunday, at the Kingsland House of Arts & Crafts. I’m told there will be iced tea and dessert there during the signing, too.

The reason I’m putting that first is because I forgot to mention it last week. Instead of telling you about all the other things I forgot last week, I’ll just say that I decided to invest in some Prevagen this week; if I remember to take it every morning, I may be doing a little better soon.

Secondly, I want to mention (for early readers) that kindergarten students at Puckett’s Elementary in Kingsland will be setting up a lemonade stand this Friday from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. to help a family with a single mom. Everyone needs lemonade; be sure to come on down!

Regular readers will already know that I don’t usually cover high school sports. I want to make a slight exception this week, because I have heard of three track stars in my coverage area who won gold medals in the recent state competition. Freshman Anna Casey, from Lake High School, won the 3A 800-meter and 1600-meter races just a couple of hours apart. Freshman Bailey Goggin, from Marble Falls High School, won the 5A 800-meter race (she also earned a Bronze in the 400-meter race). Senior Ian Carter, from Burnett High School won the 4A 110-meter high hurdles. I am impressed!

Regular readers are also aware of my “no bad news” policy for this paper, and I guess I’m making an exception to that rule as well. I just wanted to let you know that there will be a Car Show and BBQ Benefit for Charlie Campbell and her children, Shiloah and Coy. Charlie was badly hurt in a UTV accident nearly five years ago, and there have been several events to help her with medical expenses. She is now under hospice care, and the purpose of this fundraiser is really to help Shiloah and Coy. It will be held from 11 to 3 this Saturday at Griffith Taxidermy in Burnet (1751 Hwy 29W).

On a happier note, dance students from Harmony School of Creative Arts will present three showings of “A Night of Classics” this weekend at Hill Country Community Theatre (11 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. on Saturday, 2 p.m. on Sunday).

The “demolition” part of restoration at Burnett’s Badger Building (on the southeast corner of the square) looks pretty well completed, and the old Chamber of Commerce building next door is gone. Mayor Crista Bromley reports that the contractor found a large cistern (approximately 14 feet deep and 15 feet in diameter, carved into the bedrock) below the floor of the building. The city is trying to decide whether it is possible to preserve and display this long-forgotten feature.

Also, the Burnet Economic Development Corporation (BEDC) has just announced that Wedding Oak Winery from San Saba (www.weddingoakwinery.com) has contracted to open a wine-tasting room in the renovated buildings. The work should be completed some time next year. You can learn more at the next “Coffee with the Mayor,” scheduled for 8 a.m. on Thursday, May 31, at the Delavado Springs Golf Course Clubhouse.

Kingsland will soon have an ice cream parlor, Katie’s Ice Cream (of 02Kool Air Conditioning) told the Chamber Breakfast Club on Wednesday morning about her plan to open the 02Kool Creamery, featuring Blue Bell ice cream, in an adapted bus within the next few weeks.

I’ve only been taking Prevagen for three days, so I’m sure I’ve forgotten several other things that I meant to mention. I’ll try to include them in next week’s Scatterthought column (I should be doing much better by next week, right?)

Have a great week. Thanks for reading the Highland Lakes Weekly!
Kingsland House of Arts & Crafts hosted a Pointillism class, with Marsha Donahue, last Saturday afternoon. The “house” will host a book-signing for “Lake LBJ and the Re-Birth of Kingsland” from 1 to 3 this Sunday afternoon (May 20).

A crowd of young clients gathered for a picture at the Kingsland Boys & Girls Club as Chelsea Cledenenn (of Protea Salon & Spa) presented a check for about $3,500 to branch director Colby Collins. The check was from proceeds of last week’s Sip and Shop fundraiser at the Kingsland Community Center, and is the latest in a series of generous contributions from the community to help the club expand its hours for the summer season.

The Bertram Development Co. and members of the American Legion Post #607 and Ladies Auxiliary have just recently installed this impressive monument next to the railroad depot in Bertram to honor all Burnet County veterans. Veterans’ names, sorted by branch of service, are inscribed on nine polished slabs of granite.

The leaders of a group of hikers emerge from a canyon on the Reveille Peak Ranch, in western Burnet County, during a Family Field Trip event at the Upper Highland Lakes Nature Center last Saturday.

The new Taco Bell building, on Hwy 281S in Burnet, is going up rapidly and should be open for business sometime this summer. It is located between Chicken Express and Galloway Insurance, near the airport and rodeo grounds.

Bridges of Burnet County

Members of the Asher family, whose ancestors provided land to Burnet County for the Russell Fork bridge, on CR 272 northeast of Bertram, arrive together on Saturday afternoon to dedicate the new historical marker at the bridge, placed recently by the Burnet County Historical Commission. A similar marker was dedicated shortly afterwards at the nearby Joppa Bridge.

A good crowd, including several county dignitaries, attended the historical marker’s dedication at the Russell Fork bridge, which was built in 1911. The Joppa bridge was built in 1907; they are the only two remaining of 15 built in Burnet County in the early 1900s.

Two daughters (Margaret and Ruth) of L.B. and Lela Asher, who owned the surrounding ranch, assisted with the unveiling of the new historical marker last Saturday.

In addition to the traditional rodeo events like saddle bronc riding (above and below), bull riding, barrel racing, bareback riding, team roping, calf roping, and steer wrestling was a new “ranch bronc riding” event open to anyone reckless enough to try it.

Kids were included, too, with fun events like mutton bustin’ (above), shoe racing, etc. There was also live music both nights after the show.

You can’t have a rodeo without a Rodeo Queen! In the photo above, contestant Kendal Hampton-Hogues waits her turn to ride out into the arena on Friday night; she was crowned Queen on Saturday. Other members of this year’s Rodeo Royalty are: Duchess Kori Gilliland, Princess Camryn Henderson, Sweetheart Worth Evans and Contessa Landrie Hampton-Hogues.
The Marble Falls Mayfest was bigger and better than ever, with exciting rides, a wide variety of vendors and excellent live music at Johnson Park. A Saturday highlight was the “Battle of the Bands” (see pages 13 & 15).

Grant and Donna Barkey’s Kona Ice truck was one of the popular “vendor booths” at Mayfest.

Leticia Richardson served hungry customers at the portable pizza oven from “Tommy’s Mesquite-Flamed Pizza” in Llano.

Crowds at the Marble Falls Mayfest carnival were even bigger after the sun (and the temperature) went down Saturday night.
