The students at Hill Country Community Theatre's "Youth Summer Theatre Program" did an excellent job with "Annie Jr." last weekend after just two weeks' practice. The cast gathered for a group photo (above) after Saturday afternoon's show, the third of four presentations last weekend (Camp Director Jordan Jones played the part of billionaire Oliver Warbucks). More pictures from the wonderful production can be seen on page 8; many more on the "Highland Lakes Weekly" Facebook page.

Afghanistan is not part of my normal coverage area, but the highlight of my chaotic week was reading an article in the Marine Corps Times about my remarkable niece, Sgt. Brooke Sharp, who they named “Service Member of the Year” for her courage and ingenuity during a deployment there. My Facebook friends have already seen this picture, but I wanted everyone else to see it, too.

Scatterthought

This week certainly didn’t go according to plan, but there was more than enough good news to fill the paper. Two other highlights were productions by kids at Hill Country Community Theatre and the Llano Community Theatre Group, and another was the opening of Kingsland’s new Boat Town Burger Bar. I broke my dietary rules again (this week’s in a row; I’m going to be in trouble with my doctor), and enjoyed one of the best burgers I’ve ever had. I was very much impressed with what I’ve seen at Boat Town, and I expect that their businesses will be very successful here in Kingsland.

I want to mention here that J dol Mayfield and Texas Crossing will be two of the musical acts at a big festival in Spicewood this Saturday. “ShineFest” will be held from 7 p.m. to 2 a.m. at the Crystal Creek Distillery (966 Pace Bend Road South); there will be “music, fire dancers, vendors and moonshine” for a suggested donation of $5. A portion of the proceeds will benefit the Helping Hand Crisis Ministry of Spicewood.

Along with all the other Independence Day festivities happening on Wednesday, St. Paul the Apostle Catholic Church (on Thanksgiving Mountain in Horseshoe Bay), will be hosting an Armed Forces Honor Garden at 6:15 p.m. If I think I can get away from our Aqua Boom long enough, I will definitely plan to be there. Of course, there are a lot of celebrations planned, and (contrary to popular belief) I have not yet mastered the art of being in two places at once (although I’ve been accused of being “beside myself” more than once)! As Kingsland’s biggest annual event, and as the biggest Independence Day celebration in the Hill Country, Aqua Boom will definitely be my top priority.

I forgot to mention last week that Hoss Anderson will be at La Tequila Jalisco in Kingsland (in the former Stomm’s restaurant building) with his Fish Head Karaoke from 7 to 10 p.m. every Thursday. He tells me that he has 240,000 songs; all genres, English and Spanish. Check it out!

Anthem Bank & Trust, in Granite Shoals, will honor our Granite Shoals police, fire fighters, and EMS on Friday, July 6. The public is invited to drop by to say hello or thank you (or both); there will be some light lunch/refreshments and beverages provided.

The Falls on the Colorado Museum will open at 9 a.m. to mark the annual Marble Falls Founders Day on Saturday, July 14. I’ll have more details next week.

Christi Foux, from the Austin Reptiles Show, delighted her young audience at the Kingsland library last Friday with an assortment of fascinating reptiles. Kids were invited to touch this African Tortoise as part of the Summer Reading Club session.

Sarah Godfrey was getting ready to open her new “Sarah’s Cookie Jar” bakery (on RR 2900, near River Oaks Drive in Kingsland) when this photo was taken on Tuesday. It is now open, with tentative hours from 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m., Wednesday to Saturday.

Lisa Morgan and Mike Leamon took advantage of a “wooden sign-making” class at Kingsland House of Arts & Crafts to make signs for parking spots at their Highland Lakes Tiny homes business in Kingsland.
The new Boat Town Burger Bar opened for business Tuesday morning at the site of the former Longhorn Resort, near the north end of the 2900 bridge in Kingsland. The boat showroom may be open by the time you read this.

Paul Gposable was the first customer in line, arriving a few minutes before the official opening time of 11 a.m. Travis Elder and Matt Ledbetter were ready behind the counter to take his order.

Customers were just beginning to arrive when this picture was taken (about 11:02). The interior of the nicely-furnished restaurant is more spacious than it appears from outside, and there is plenty of additional seating on the front porch. There are 32 boat slips for customers who prefer to arrive by water.
A large group of aspiring young artists attended the Highland Arts Guild’s free Summer Art Camp this week, where they were introduced to a variety of art forms.

Children who attended last week’s Music Camp at Chapel of the Hills in Buchanan Dam closed out the successful camp with a musical Praise and Worship Night last Friday. The church will host a Veterans dinner at 5:30 p.m. this Friday to help kick off Kingsland’s Aqua Boom festival.

Another well-attended “Art Camp” was held at Valerie Smasal’s “Calamity & Grace” shop (on the west side of the Llano square) this week. It was a good week to be a kid in the Highland Lakes area!
Members of Burnet County’s Commissioners Court and Historical Commission gathered around as County Judge James Oakley presented a Distinguished Service Award to Joann Myers, president of the 29-member commission, on Tuesday morning. The award, sent by the Texas Historical Commission (THC) for achievements in 2017, marks the 7th consecutive year that the Burnet County Historical Commission has been similarly recognized.

Nationally-known storyteller and entertainer Keith Coast dramatized Bible stories for kids at Hill Country Fellowship’s “Camp HCF” in Burnet on Monday. Camp HCF’s theme this year was “Galactic Starveyors – Discovering the God of the Universe.”

Workers at Burnet’s Taco Bell, in front of Hill Country Fellowship on Highway 281 South, continue to make rapid progress; the restaurant seems to be on schedule to open in July.

At left: Annie escapes in a laundry basket and meets a stray dog she calls “Sandy.” The whole show was excellent, but these two (Lizzie Hartman and Morgan Potter) did an extra-specialty good job!

Above: Annie meets the staff at Oliver Warbucks’ mansion after she is invited to spend a week as his guest. At right: The evil “Miss Hannigan” (Riley Gisi) and her accomplices Lily and Rooster (Kennedy Proctor and Valarie Tarver) celebrate their plan to collect a reward by pretending to be Annie’s real parents.

All ends well as the devious plot is thwarted, and “Daddy Warbucks” agrees to adopt Annie as “President Roosevelt” (Allie Whigham) looks on.

The Llano Community Theatre group presented two performances of its comical stage play “The Monster Hunters” last weekend. The cast gathered for a group picture (above, right) after the Sunday matinee. There will be two more shows this weekend: 7 p.m. on Friday and Saturday, at the LISD Community Room (1400 Oatman).

The Monster Hunters Club in Bumblewood was mostly talk (since none of the members had ever actually seen a monster).

The club sprang into action when devious members of the “Secret Society of Girls Who Like to Make Bracelets” falsely reported a monster on the loose in the cemetery.

The nervous club members enlist the help of two comic-book actors to apprehend the fictitious monsters. Hilarity ensues!

The Monster Hunters Club is a charming and entertaining play, and the young actors have done a very good job presenting it. We highly recommend this show!
