An optimistic army of volunteers was at work last Saturday as Kingsland began to recover from the ravages of last Tuesday’s flood along the Llano River. The area pictured above, on RR 1431 in “downtown” Kingsland, was completely inundated with water from the overflowing lake last Tuesday morning; on Saturday, some volunteers cleaned out buildings ruined by the flood while others (across the highway) provided free meals for evacuees and workers. First Responders, Churches, civic groups, businesses and good-hearted neighbors eagerly helped in any way they could. It was a “good news” story that was repeated in communities up and down the river after the horrifying natural disaster.

A lot of the scheduled events got canceled after the big flood on the Llano River at the beginning of the week, but I didn’t have to worry about finding news to put in the paper. Last week, I reluctantly devoted three pages to the “bad news” of the flood. This week, the flood still dominated the news, but the response in Kingsland and elsewhere to that disaster definitely fits my definition of “good news.”

Kingsland suffered major losses last week. While the failure of the 2900 bridge was a dramatic event, Kingsland’s many miles of waterfront property made it especially vulnerable to this kind of flood. Hundreds of locals had to leave their homes in a hurry; a friend told me that 334 homes in Kingsland had 18 inches of water or more inside them at the height of the flood.

Not only did Kingslanders respond with a sense of community and togetherness, but good-intentioned neighbors from all around Texas (and beyond) came to Kingsland to help in any way that they could. The National Guard was there along with several state agencies to assist with search and rescue, provide necessary supplies and arrange timely help. The Red Cross and Salvation Army were there; a press conference featuring Senator Ted Cruz and other government officials brought televised cameras from all over Texas, and church groups like Texas Baptist Men and the Churches of Christ Disaster Relief Effort supplemented the work already being done by local churches.

Of course, local first responders lived up to their job description, and volunteer firefighters and auxiliary members followed through as the Community Center became an indoor shelter for evacuees (for a few hours on the Burnet County side of Kingsland, the spacious new WakePoint complex became a shelter; WakePoint also ordered a truckload of water to give away over the next couple of days).

The Community Center also lived up to its name, serving as a temporary shelter and the headquarters for much of the relief effort, including a big “Multi-Agency Relief Center” this Wednesday and Thursday. Of course, that meant that the planned Halloween Festival had to be at least postponed, but the center is serving the community very well this week.

This hurried recap of the week’s amazing activities is definitely not complete, and even in Kingsland there are far more heroes than those mentioned here. When you multiply that by all the other affected communities, I’m sure that thousands of heroes are going “unsung” in this week’s paper. This is just a sampling of the Highland Lakes neighborhood’s “good news.”

Faith Academy will hold its 2018 Homecoming six-man football game and dedication ceremony for its new track and field facility this Friday (a week later than planned, because of the flooding). At halftime, school officials will honor Rayford and Rebecca Britton for their generosity and love for Faith Academy by naming it Britton Track & Field.

And there is some good news that isn’t related to the flood; the Hill Country Humane Society has an extra-good adoption special this month, and any pet that has been at the shelter for more than 30 days can be adopted for just $50.

Dr. Sara Lindsey, of Kingsland Dental Care, has announced a Veterans Day special: Free dental cleanings and extractions for any veteran who presents military ID from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Friday, November 9. Call 254-355-4604 for an appointment.

Harmony School of Creative Arts (in Marble Falls) is offering Adult Ballroom and Two-Step Dance Classes on Tuesday evenings.

My friend Rodney McGee, former pastor at Hill Country Fellowship in Burnet, will be speaking at Journey Fellowship in Llano this Sunday (11 a.m.).

Windschime Assisted Living in Kingsland will present “A Haunted House” and trick-or-treating next Wednesday evening (October 31).

Yet Praise Dance Company (in Kingsland) is celebrating its 5th birthday on the evening of November 2 (see ad on page 2), and Numinous Coffee Roaster (in Marble Falls) is celebrating its 3rd anniversary all day on November 3.

The Highland Lakes Quilt Guild is continuing its Breast Cancer Patient Support Project for a 10th year, making “Anti-Ouch Pouches” (wedge-shaped pillows that hang from the shoulder, fitting snugly under the arm to cushion the area after breast surgery or during radiation treatment) for more than 1,100 patients per year.

Each year the Kingsland Chamber celebrates Small Business Saturday. Those who store front offers specials and welcome the public. Those without store fronts (and some with) set up booths. The event will be held from 9 a.m. on Saturday after Thanksgiving; it is FREE and open to everyone who would like to set up a table or booth in the Prosperity Bank parking lot.
The National Guard was one of the early arrivals after Kingsland’s flood. Among their other duties, they gave away lots of bottled water; first at the Kingsland Community Center (above), then at the parking lot of Kingsland’s First Baptist Church.

The new WakePoint convenience store not only offered space as an emergency shelter for evacuees cut off from the west side of Kingsland by flooded roads, but put in a special order for a truckload of bottled water to give away on the east side of town.

Volunteers from the Hill Country Auxiliary (pictured above: Cindy Miller, Amanda Barnett, Tonya Miller, Kenneth Smith and Robert Barnett) offered a variety of emergency supplies and services; first from the Kingsland Community Center, then from the empty building across from Prosperity Bank.
Volunteers from Farmers Insurance set up a BBQ Kitchen in the formerly flooded parking lot of M&M Donuts (on RR 1431 in Kingsland) to provide free meals for hundreds of grateful Kingsland residents at noon on Saturday. A group of volunteers led by Steve May (of Canyon Creek Home Inspections) offered “Free Meals” between NAPA Auto Parts and Kelly-Moore Paints at the same time.

The chain of P. Terry’s Burger Stands, from Austin, sent trucks to the parking lot of the Highland Lakes Church of Christ on Saturday to offer “Free Burgers” to those affected by the flood.

A group of good-hearted local volunteers arranged for free BBQ meals in the Packsaddle Elementary School cafeteria from noon to 8 p.m. on Sunday.

Executive Director Jacques DuBose and Regional Communications Manager Veronica Ramirez, of the Central/South Texas Region of the American Red Cross, coordinated Red Cross services in Kingsland and participated in the “Multi-Agency Recovery Center” at the Kingsland Community Center on Wednesday and Thursday.

The Salvation Army provided a variety of services for those affected by the flood, including this unique laundry trailer at the Kingsland Community Center.

Several different Baptist groups converged at the First Baptist Church, bringing with them some handy equipment (such as this mobile shower unit). The Texas Baptist Men were some of the heroes in the clean-up effort after the flood, gutting damaged homes to remove mud, debris and mold.
About 45 volunteers gathered early Monday morning to unload a tractor trailer filled with basic “disaster relief” supplies from the Churches of Christ Disaster Relief Effort in Nashville, Tennessee. Those supplies are available to anyone in need.

Each pallet was split up and hauled inside by waiting volunteers as soon as it was taken off the truck.

Inside, the labeled boxes were sorted and stacked for easy access and efficient distribution in a remarkably well-organized operation at the Highland Lakes Church of Christ in Kingsland.

Signs of the Times

At Kingsland’s Dairy Queen, the sign reads simply “Re-Open Soon.”

At Pinnacle 1 Realty, which had a couple of feet of water in its office on the low section of RR 1431, the scrolling sign has messages like “Thank You, 1st Responders” and “Kingsland Strong” in addition to the one pictured at left. The sign pictured below is at Kingsland Health & Fitness.

Always a good Kingsland citizen, Gatti’s Pizza was also one of the first to donate food to evacuees at the Kingsland Community Center last Tuesday.
County workers cleared the Kingsland Slab and its approaches on Monday; while the river still pours over the top of the roadway, the unofficial report is that the road is intact and will be open to traffic as soon as the water is low enough.

The Llano River, which nearly dried up during the month of August, has been overflowing the Kingsland Slab most of the time since September 23. Wednesday’s rain was expected to raise the water level again, but weather forecasts indicated dry weather for the rest of October; hopefully that means there will soon be at least one way to cross the Llano River between Llano and Marble Falls.

Andrew Murr
Republican
for State Representative

ENDORSED by Governor Greg Abbott.

"Andrew Murr has been a successful defender of rural values. This past session, Representative Murr was instrumental in passing a conservative, balanced budget, advancing legislation that provided funding for border security, working to increase individual property rights and filing legislation to address the school finance system."

"By reelecting Andrew Murr on November 6, residents of District 53 can be assured they will send a proven conservative leader back to the Texas House. I am proud to endorse Representative Murr and know his values and family roots in District 53 will again make him the right choice to defend the rural way of life that has made Texas the greatest state in the nation."
