This enormous sand bar in the middle of Lake LBJ, where the Llano and Colorado Rivers meet at Kingsland, is perhaps the most obvious evidence of the October 16 flood’s power. It has been exposed by the LCRA’s 4-foot drawdown of the lake to allow property owners an opportunity to do some maintenance and repairs on the flood-ravaged waterfront. A small army of workers and equipment is busy up and down this lake and Lake Marble Falls, but it seems likely that the effects of the flood will still be apparent long after the lake level returns to normal at the end of February. You can see some pictures of the bridge construction and flood clean-up in this week’s paper; many more photos are posted at the “Highland Lakes Weekly” Facebook page.

Photo of the Week

Pat Muller and Susan Patton, of Valentine Lakeside in Kingsland, kindly offered me a boat ride from their resort (which was badly damaged by the October 16 flood) to the RR 2900 bridge construction site, giving me a different (and very interesting) view of the progress there. You can see three of my photos on page 5 (and many more on Facebook).

Scatterthought

By JOHN HALLOWELL

It's not like nothing was happening last week; just look at the pictures in this paper, and you'll know that's not so. It's just that, even in Texas, there aren't so many planned public events in the "dead of winter." I actually got to go home while it was still daylight last Friday, and on Saturday, between trips to the LJBI Yacht Club & Marina to check on the kayak fishing tournament, I got to drive around and take pictures of the lakes and the new construction in Marble Falls. Of course, you'll have to go to Facebook to see most of the pictures; there's not going to be enough space for more than a couple of them in the paper.

This weekend will be a little busier, even though the Burnet Chamber banquet is NOT this weekend (I had the date wrong in last week's paper. Sorry!) The big events will be the 3rd Annual Lone Star Luau, a "trop rock" music festival to be held at the Lakeside Pavilion this Friday, Saturday and Sunday, and I stopped in to take some pictures last year, and I was really impressed by the crowd there. Since this time, I have met Thom Sheperd (a CMA of Texas Songwriter of the Year who wrote "Riding with Private Malone" and "Redneck Yacht Club") and his wife, Corey McCabe (also an award-winning songwriter), who will be among the headliners. I'm becoming a fan!

Also this weekend, the Friends of the Llano Red Top Jail will be holding a "Llano Pickers Area-Wide Garage Sale" from 9 to 3 on Saturday at the JLK Event Center. There are a few other events I want to mention here, as well (even though some are already listed in my "Upcoming Events" article).

Andrea Biebelfeld, who also holds classes at Kingsland Health & Fitness, has a Zumba class at the Hill Country Hall in Buchanan Dam every Monday at 6 p.m.

The Kingsland/Lake LJBI Chamber of Commerce will be holding a Mixer next Thursday evening (February 7) at Boat Town and Winter Texas Dinner on the following Tuesday evening (February 12).

Constable Bill Edwards will be holding a Basic Handgun class, beginning at 8 a.m. next Saturday in the boardroom of the Kingsland Water Supply Company (1422 West Dr). A follow-up Texas License to Carry training class will be held on February 16. Message him on Facebook for more details.

John Arthur Martinez, Pauline Reese, Liza Coutinho and Chris Reeves will be on stage at The Place Downtown for a concert benefiting Operation Exfil on Saturday evening, February 9.

The Hill Country Blenders will be providing "Singing Valentines" through the day on Valentine's Day (Thursday, February 14) in the Highland Lakes area. For a cost as little as $40, a quartet in Barbershop attire will come to your chosen venue and present two love songs, a lovely silk rose and a picture of the loved one with the quartet. Contact any of the Blenders to arrange a "Singing Valentine" or call Jim McCatchan at 527-385-4446 or email him at jmccatchan@me.com. Proceeds benefit area charitable organizations.

The Burnet VFW Auxiliary is seeking high school age art enthusiasts to enter its Creative Art Contest. Entries are due by March 31, with judging in early April. Cash prizes will be awarded, and the local first-place winner will advance to the district competition with a chance for state and national honors. Contact Kat Carter at the Burnet VFW Auxiliary for more information.

School counselor Zilah Schiener, from Parkside Elementary School in Kingsland, wants the public to know that nomination forms for the Gifted & Talented program at each school in the Llano ISD must be completed and returned by Friday, February 15. To be considered for selection to participate in Gifted & Talented during the upcoming school year, a student who is currently enrolled in grades K-11 may be nominated by a teacher, the parent/guardian, or the student (grades 6-11). Identification criteria include teacher recommendations and scores on tests that measure verbal ability, mathematical ability and problem solving, and creativity. The goal of this program is to develop within each student the desire for excellence and a sense of individual responsibility.

Nomination forms and permission forms for testing are available in the counselor's office on each campus in the district. Questions regarding the GT program may be addressed to any of the campus counselors.

Cindy Miller, of the Kingsland VFD's Hill Country Auxiliary unit, told a January 23 meeting of the Friends of the Kingsland Library about the amazing response (from near and far) to the devastation of the October 16 flood.

Volunteers listened carefully to Executive Director Tammy Manning, of the new Highland Lakes Crisis Network, as she explained some of the procedures for helping flood victims rebuild during a meeting at Kingsland's First Baptist Church last Thursday.

A new sign is up at the former Vietnamese restaurant in Kingsland, and Jr’s Tex-Mex hopes to be in its more spacious new location by sometime next week (just a block west from its former RR 1431 site).
A close-up view of well-equipped barges drilling holes and preparing the foundation of the soon-to-be RR 2900 bridge in Kingsland.

This farther-back view shows barges stretching half-way across the lake from the north end of the bridge.

Work continues on the south end of the bridge as well. Just right-of-center in this photo is a huge chunk of concrete from the old bridge which was located by divers and retrieved from the bottom of the lake.

A few flood-battered boat docks remain on the shore of Lake Marble Falls, but property owners are working feverishly to complete clean-up and repairs before the lake is re-filled at the end of this month.

The Kayak Angler’s Tournament Series came to Lake LBJ last weekend, and more than 100 hardy kayakers hit the water on a chilly Saturday morning.

Lake LBJ presents several contrasting backdrops for boaters. The upper picture here shows two kayak anglers near Lighthouse Drive in Horseshoe Bay, with transplanted palm trees lining the man-made peninsula. The lower picture shows a single angler in front of the LORA’s huge Thomas C. Ferguson power plant, also in Horseshoe Bay, with beautiful lake homes in the foreground. Many upscale subdivisions line sections of the lake, but there is still quite a bit of unspoiled ranchland to enjoy as well.
